Landry sorry for MacIntosh reversal

Ernest Fenwick MacIntosh leaves the Nova Scotia Court of Appeal in Halifax on Oct. 7, 2010. A review of the N.S. Public Prosecution Service has found there were several factors that contributed to the delay in bringing MacIntosh to stand trial on 43 child sex-abuse charges. ANDREW VAUGHAN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sex abuse. Report reveals complications, delays that dragged out investigation, extradition

Nova Scotia's justice minister is apologizing to the men who claimed they were abused by Ernest Fenwick MacIntosh for delays that led to the overturning of his convictions.

"We ... know that his victims did not get the justice they deserve. But I do believe that these people deserve answers," said Ross Landry after receiving a report examining the 16-year-long process of extraditing and prosecuting MacIntosh.

The report determined several issues at the provincial and federal levels complicated the investigation of sexual-abuse complaints, launched in 1995, and the attempt to extradite MacIntosh from India.

The former Port Hawkesbury businessman was convicted on 17 counts of sex abuse dating back to the 1970s, but the convictions were quashed on appeal with a ruling that the Crown took too long to bring MacIntosh to trial.

Delays started with the Passport Office's decision to reverse course on revoking MacIntosh's passport, allowing him to renew it in 1998 and remain in India.

"The reasons why his passport was renewed ... have never been explained," states the report.

The renewal forced the Crown in Nova Scotia to embark on the lengthy extradition process, fraught with delayed and confused communication with the federal agency responsible for extradition requests.

Landry said he has asked his federal justice minister to review the actions of the agencies involved.

"It's a matter of looking at the facts and then accepting responsibility and trying to move forward to ensure that we don't ever repeat this type of matter," he said.

The report also highlighted the sluggish prosecution of the case.

"The Port Hawkesbury Crown ... contributed to the delay by failing to follow up promptly," it states, adding the workload and court schedule are partly to blame.

The director of the Public Prosecution Service said Crown attorney Richard MacKinnon was handling between 600 and 1,200 cases a year and spending up to five days a week in court.

"Leaving this to a skilled but very busy Crown attorney in a rural office, a case with these complexities, proved not to be the right call," said Martin Herschorn.

Short-term changes being implemented to address problems identified in the report include electronic alerts generated by the Public Prosecution Service records system when more than eight months elapse after a first court appearance. Crown attorneys will also be trained in extradition proceedings.

Longer-term solutions include a new electronic case-management system and greater use of electronic disclosure.

Man killed, two seriously hurt in head-on crash

One man is dead and two women are listed in serious condition after a head-on collision near Lawrencetown Beach on Wednesday.

Just before 6 a.m., police say, an SUV collided with a car on Highway 207 in Lawrencetown. The 55-year-old male driver of the SUV was pronounced dead after he arrived at hospital, police say.

The name of the victim hasn't been released.

"It happened in the early hours. If anybody did see the collision, investigators would be interested in speaking to them," said Halifax RCMP spokesman Cpl. Scott MacRae.

A dark two-door car that the two women were in could be seen with a crushed front end, cracked windshield and broken driver's window.

"Reports were that the two females that were in the car were ejected from the vehicle but it would be the job of the traffic analyst after a mechanical inspection as well as the investigators to determine the exact circumstances surrounding the collision," MacRae said.

Highway 207 was closed for more than seven hours as police investigated the crash.

A six-year-old boy involved in a car crash near Falmouth died of his injuries on Wednesday.

The four-vehicle accident happened at about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday on Highway 101, and included a tractor-trailer and a mobile home.

"When someone is killed in an accident it is a tragedy," said Staff Sgt. Dan Austin of the

Windsor RCMP. "No one likes to go to those types of calls."

Police say a man, woman and three-year-old girl were hospitalized after the crash, which closed the highway in both directions.

The six-year-old boy and an eight-year-old girl were both taken to the IWK Health Centre by LifeFlight helicopter.

The woman and children were all in the same vehicle, and the man was driving the tractor-trailer.

Police say the boy died in hospital on Wednesday morning. The eight-year-old remains at the IWK Health Centre in stable condition.

The victim's name hasn't been released.

Police say speed was a factor in the crash. They say the tractor-trailer struck a minivan, causing it to collide with a motor home towing a car.

"Be aware of what's going on, and try to drive defensively," Austin said, adding that the investigation is ongoing.

The driver of the truck, a 59-year-old man from Montreal, has been charged with dangerous operation of a motor vehicle causing death. He will appear in Windsor provincial court on Sept. 3.

$55K grant. Ecology group will encourage human-powered transport

Advocates at the Ecology Action Centre hope a five-figure grant from the province will lay a foundation for encouraging more Nova Scotians to walk, run and bike rather than drive.

"This is the beginning of what I think is a tidal wave of interest and support for active transportation," said Janet Barlow, active transportation co-ordinator at the EAC.

The grant, totalling $55,000, will be earmarked by the EAC for staffing, training, hosting workshops and helping communities across the province develop active transportation plans.

Boating mishap. Missing boy's body found in Cape Breton harbour

The body of a 14-year-old boy who went missing on Saturday when a boat capsized in a Cape Breton harbour has been found, RCMP say.

Const. Brad Anderson said the body of Gregory Hibbs of Glace Bay was found in Ingonish harbour at about 11:20 a.m. on Wednesday.

Police said five people between the ages of 14 and 18 were in a small wooden boat when it took on water and overturned. All five went into the water about 300 metres from land, but Hibbs didn't make it to shore.

Two charged in downtown beating

A man and woman are facing charges after police say a person was severely beaten in a drug-related incident in downtown Halifax on Tuesday night.

Police responded to a robbery call at about 9:30 p.m. in the 2100 block of Barrington Street. The victim, a 43-year-old man, alleges he was approached by two people, beaten and had his money stolen.

He went to a nearby business and called police. He was then taken to hospital with serious facial injuries.

Early Wednesday morning, police arrested two people without incident at a home in the 2100 block of Gottingen Street.

Martin Andrew Ross, 27, and Holly Lynn MacDonald, 33, both from Halifax, are each charged with robbery and breaching a court order. Ross is also facing a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Early-year centres condense programs under one roof

It all starts in the cradle

"That's what everyone wants, a future full of promise."

Some parents across Nova Scotia will soon have the chance to get back in the classroom.

On Wednesday, the government announced it is creating three centres across the province so that every child, from birth to six years old, has the same opportunities and care.

"It will bring programs and services into one accessible spot in the community, where families will find it easy to get the support that they need," Premier Darrell Dexter said during the launch at the Halifax Developmental Centre on Maynard Street.

Dexter said the province will match a donation of $100,000 a year for five years from the Margaret and Wallace McCain Family Foundation to create the centres, which will be attached to or near a school.

He said hundreds of parents told him navigating through the many child-care programs and services was "challenging," so the new centres will combine existing health, education and developmental supports under one roof.

Parents won't pay extra fees because most areas already have programs, just in different places, Dexter said.

After the event, Margaret McCain told reporters how important it is for her to support the project because of her background as a social worker.

"If we're really going to try and create a non-violent country, we have to start with babies when they're born," McCain said. "It's about behaviour.... It's about playtime with a purpose."

Education Minister Ramona Jennex said school boards are drafting applications to host a centre, and she hopes to have them in place this fiscal year.

Jennex said each site could deliver child care, early intervention, after-school programs, parent education or something unique.

"Each of these sites is going to look a little bit different," she said.

She also announced that the centres will be run by her department and the provincial Early Years Partnership, a new committee of government representatives and people in the fields of child care, education and health.

Jennex said the centres won't take away from daycare but will offer different supports. The province will work with non-profits and businesses alike to see what gaps should be filled.

Premier nixes election speculation

After an education announcement on Wednesday in Halifax, Premier Darrell Dexter told reporters he is "getting tired" of being asked if every government initiative is because of a pending election.

"When we got elected four years ago, we treated every announcement ... like it was a prelude to the next election, because they all are," Dexter said.

"It's just a matter of the timetable that is rolling along that makes this closer to whenever the next election is, but these are all programs and plans that we had been working on."

Dexter said the spring and summer announcements aren't just a "spike" before an election, but part of the government schedule.

"After every budget cycle, there was always a series of announcements because they are tied to the budget," he said. "That's just a natural thing."

Dexter said that four years ago his NDP government had a vision for the province, and now the public is seeing the tail end of those plans coming through. HALEY RYAN/METRO

Pockwock Water Transmission Main Connection Completed

Thank You To Our Customers

Last weekend, Halifax Water staff, and its contractor Dexter Construction, undertook one of the most complex water projects in Halifax Water's history. The work involved the temporary shutdown of the Pockwock water transmission main and completion of connections to facilitate the replacement of 1.7km of the watermain over the next 5 months.

The key objectives for this phase of the project were to complete the required connections safely and efficiently within a 24 hour period, and avoid the use of the Chain Lake backup water supply which would require a boil water advisory. Through the co-ordinated efforts of Engineering, Operations, and Customer Service staff, the project was well planned and well executed.

In order to complete this complex task within the 24 hour timeframe, Halifax Water customers were asked to conserve as much water as possible. Customers right across the region stepped up and did their part to reduce water use and helped in a big way to avoid a boil water advisory. This was truly a community effort.

We understand the inconvenience it placed on customers over the weekend, and the discoloured water some customers experienced during the connection phase of the project.

Halifax Water would like to sincerely thank all customers who conserved water and did their part for their neighbourhood and their regional community.

RCMP did enough to handle abuse complaints: Review

Challenging claim.

Michael Ryan says claims by Nicole Doucet are untrue

A police watchdog says the RCMP did all it could for a woman who accused her husband of abuse and tried to have him killed, challenging a claim by the Supreme Court of Canada that the force ignored her pleas for help.

The Commission for Public Complaints Against the RCMP issued a lengthy review Wednesday into the way Nova Scotia detachments handled complaints by Nicole Doucet in 2007 and 2008.

Ian McPhail, the commission's interim chairman, said investigators focused on assertions that the RCMP didn't do enough to help the woman before she tried to hire a hitman to kill her ex-husband, Michael Ryan.

"The question is, did they take all reasonable steps, based on policy (and) on the information given to them? And our conclusion is that they did," McPhail said in an interview.

"They were at all times sensitive and thorough in their investigation."

Doucet, a teacher from western Nova Scotia, was arrested in 2008 when she tried to hire an undercover Mountie to kill Ryan, a member of the Canadian Forces.

She said in court proceedings that in the years after their marriage in 1992, he had pushed her, squeezed her neck, put guns to her head and threatened to kill her and ceiving help from police.

That ruling was later upheld by Nova Scotia's Court of Appeal.

She alleged that she sought assistance from police nine times in dealing with a violent husband, but was told they wouldn't intervene because they were deemed civil disputes.

The commission found the RCMP was not provided with enough information that would have given them "reasonable belief that there was violence in the relationship or that Ms. Doucet was in danger."

McPhail added that Doucet provided no information to allow for a criminal investigation.

The review says Doucet did not report any abuse to the agencies that came in contact with her, including Community Services, undercover police, a psychiatrist who assessed her and several RCMP officers.

Long tradition. Death knell sounds for harness racing at Truro Raceway

A harness racing tradition that dates back 138 years in the Truro area is slated to come to an end this weekend.

The board of the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition (NSPE) Commission voted on Monday to shut down harness racing at Truro Raceway following Sunday's race card because of a crippling financial situation that has haunted the organization for years.

"The bombshell was yesterday," Steve Morton, president of the Truro Harness Horse Owners Association, said of the news. "Everyone's very concerned and you have to realize that there's 200 jobs here (approximately) and there are people's livelihoods here."

Horsemen have also received written confirmation that the water and power to the stables will be shut off by Aug. 15 and all horses must be vacated by that time.

NSPE general manager Roger McCallum said the harness racing activities are be-

CEO called a 'murderer'

Lac-Mégantic disaster. Railway chief receives nothing but venom after coming to town

Jeers and icy stares greeted the head of a railway company as he arrived Wednesday with a police escort to visit the small Quebec community shattered by disaster.

Lac-Mégantic resident Raymond Lafontaine, whose son and two daughters-in-law are among the 50 missing, couldn't conceal his anger.

"I wanted to see my children's murderer," Lafontaine said. "And I wanted to see the murderer of other people from here who didn't ask to die."

Lafontaine said he's been contacted by people offering to pay cash to use his equipment to have the train tracks ripped from the ground.

Ed Burkhardt's arrival in Lac-Mégantic was a hot topic among residents, but only a dozen or so gathered to watch the president of the Chicago-based Rail World Inc. as he was cornered by reporters.

One man blamed the modest turnout on Burkhardt, accusing him of slinking in the shadows to avoid facing a potentially angry crowd.

"When someone's guilty, they hide," said Bruno Huot.

What residents lacked in numbers, they made up in indignation, with some hurling insults at the man they held responsible for the loss of their homes and loved ones.

Burkhardt's comments at the news scrum, held in the middle of a street, were at times drowned out by hecklers.

Among them was Huot, who shouted a string of swear words and called Burkhardt a murderer.

One onlooker demanded that he visit the site that used to be Lac-Mégantic's downtown.

The railway boss explained that he'd stayed in Chicago to deal with the crisis from his office, where he was better able to communicate with insurers, the media and officials in different places during what he described as 20-hour work days.

His apparent contrition seemed to fall on deaf ears.

"It actually makes us more angry that he's here because I think he's shameless," said teenager Alyssia Bolduc.

Lego no-go hits man like ton of tiny bricks

A 63-year-old Windsor, Ont., man and avid Lego fan drove hours to the Vaughan Mills Legoland, only to be told he wasn't allowed in because he didn't have a child.

For years now, John St-Onge has been a big Lego fan. His interest was piqued when he started buying them for his children, and it continued to grow even after they grew up and moved away.

Today, St-Onge has more than 50,000 Lego blocks from more than 72 different sets, all documented and stored away in his home.

"What they do is only limited to your imagination," explains St-Onge.

He decided to make a trip to Legoland with his 30-year-old daughter Nicole on Saturday morning. But after a three-hour drive, the excited pair was told by staff that they wouldn't be allowed to go in without a child present.

Instead, Legoland has a once-a-month "adults night,"

John St-Onge with his 2,300-piece "Robie House" Lego set.

CONTRIBUTED/NICOLE ST-ONGE

during which all ages can enter without a child.

But St-Onge was hopeful they'd make an exception, especially when he only wanted to see one thing.

"I said, 'All I want is to go out and take a picture of the skyline exhibit you have. You can escort me,'" he says.

They asked to speak to the manager, who they were told was too busy to meet them. St-Onge and Nicole drove home empty-handed.

"I didn't argue the point. I'm not going to make a scene," says St-Onge. "But it doesn't make you feel good. It makes you feel like you got a number on your back."

Nicole says the experience was "quite discouraging, quite upsetting, a little bit embarrassing. And my dad, he feels totally discriminated against."

Legoland has since been in contact with the pair. A representative apologized, but says they stand by their policies, which they explained were in place to protect the families that visit. They offered to plan a special day for St-Onge, but Nicole says the details were vague and they weren't sure what the friendly gesture would involve.

"We would love to go back, but it would be at their expense as a guest," she says. "I've already fronted the travel cost once, two free tickets just won't cut it."

Bountiful, B.C.

Report filed on alleged sex abuse by polygamists

An RCMP report into possible sexual offences against children at a polygamous commune in southeastern B.C. has now been handed to a special prosecutor.

The Criminal Justice Branch says the Mounties expect to have more information in the coming months about the activities of individuals in Bountiful.

The branch says it will likely be several months before prosecutor Peter Wilson reviews all the documents and makes a final charge assessment about the offences, alleged to have occurred since the 1980s.

Wilson was appointed last year to review any evidence the RCMP collects and to consider charges that could include human trafficking, child exploitation and polygamy.

Two community leaders were charged with polygamy in 2009, but the charges were later thrown out. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Asiana crash. Experience of pilots under scrutiny

As Flight 214 descended over San Francisco Bay, both Asiana Airlines pilots were trying something new.

In the left seat of the cockpit sat Lee Gang-kuk, a pilot with 35 hours of experience flying a Boeing 777 who was landing the big jet for his first time at San Francisco International Airport. At his right was Lee Jeong-Min, a trainer making his first trip as an instructor pilot.

It was also the first time they had flown together, though they had years of experience.

Investigators trying to piece together what caused the crash are looking at their pairing and working relationship.

National Transportation Safety Board chairman Deborah Hersman said Wednesday the pilot trainee told investigators he was blinded by a light at about 500 feet, the point at which the airliner began to slow and drop precipitously. She said lasers have not been ruled out.

Evidence shows both pilots thought the airliner's speed was being controlled by an autothrottle set for 157 mph.

Inspectors found that the autothrottle had been "armed," Hersman said. But investigators are still determining whether it had been engaged.

Muslims worldwide pray for Mideast peace at Ramadan

Syria. Families caught in the crossfire struggle to eat as prices soar and violence persists

As the Muslim holy month of Ramadan began Wednesday, many Syrians who observe the daily dawn-to-dusk fast that is broken with lavish family meals are struggling to find the usually festive mood and holiday warmth as the country's bloody conflict rages for a third year.

In one rebel-held city, residents have resorted to begging for crumbs at a local soup kitchen, while in a refugee camp on the Jordanian border, Syrians hounded by the desert heat and dust break their fast separated from relatives back home.

Reflecting the deprivation brought on by the war, the UN food agency said that seven million people were now reliant on food aid simply to eat. The fighting that has destroyed much of the country, combined with prices that have soared in recent months, have left many Syrians struggling to get by.

Ramadan is traditionally a time of reflection and prayer, and Muslims are expected to abstain during daylight hours from food, drink, smoking and sex to focus on spirituality, good deeds and charity.

"People come by the kitchen just begging for scraps, it tears the heart," said an activist in the rebel-held northern Syrian city of Maarat al-Numan.

He said activists were using a communal kitchen to distribute a Ramadan evening meal to some 400 of the city's neediest families. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Worshippers eat during Iftar, or breaking of the fast, at the Grand Mosque in the holy Muslim city of Mecca, Saudi Arabia, Wednesday. Many devout Muslims in the Middle East have started observing the dawn-to-dusk fast for the month of Ramadan as the region is rocked by Egypt's turmoil and the relentless civil war in Syria. # Primitive writing found on 5,000-year-old relics

Archaeologists say they have discovered a new form of primitive writing in markings on stoneware excavated from the relic site in eastern China dating 5,000 years back. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Archaeologists say they have discovered some of the world's oldest known primitive writing, dating back 5,000 years, in eastern China, and some of the markings etched on broken axes resemble a modern Chinese character.

The inscriptions on artifacts found south of Shanghai are about 1,400 years older than the oldest written Chinese language. Chinese scholars are divided over whether the markings are words or something simpler, but they say the finding will shed light on the origins of Chinese language and culture.

The oldest writing in the world is believed to be from Mesopotamia, dating back slightly more than 5,000 years. Chinese characters are believed to have been developed independently.

Inscriptions were found on more than 200 pieces dug out from the Neolithic-era Liangzhu relic site. The pieces are among thousands of fragments of ceramic, stone, jade, wood, ivory and bone excavated from the site between 2003 and 2006, lead archaeologist Xu Xinmin said.

The inscriptions have not been reviewed by experts outside the country, but a group of Chinese scholars on archaeology and ancient writing met last weekend in Zhejiang province to discuss the finding.

They agreed that the inscriptions are not enough to indicate a developed writing system, but Xu said they include evidence of words on two broken stone-axe pieces.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ancient script

One of the pieces has six word-like shapes strung together like a sentence.

- The six characters are arranged in a line, and three of them resemble the modern Chinese character for human beings.
- One scholar said the markings should be considered hieroglyphics.

Hearings are set to begin on the NDP government's own anti-bullying legislation — something the Tories have vigorously opposed.

The government's anti-bullying legislation would force schools to allow gay-straight alliances and would require bullying to be reported to a principal.

The case drew national protests after some civil-rights activists argued that the 44-day delay in arresting Zimmerman was influenced by Martin's race. Martin was black and Zimmerman identifies himself as Jurors have seen repeated video recordings of Zimmerman telling his side of the story to police investigators.

One key question has been whether it was Martin or Zimmerman heard screaming for help on a police call that captured their fatal fight.

Defence attorneys called Zimmerman's friends, parents and uncle to testify that it was Zimmerman screaming. Martin's mother and brother had testified that it was Martin.

Online espionage. Nations are hiring cybermercenaries, says U.K. intelligence report

A British intelligence report said Wednesday that other nations are hiring hackers to launch attacks against their enemies, a trend it described as particularly worrying.

The warning over cybermercenaries came in an annual report published by Britain's Intelligence and Security Committee, a watchdog body of senior lawmakers that oversees Britain's spy agencies.

Citing testimony from British eavesdropping agency GCHQ, the report described the mercenaries as "skilled cyber professionals undertaking attacks on diverse targets such as financial institutions and energy companies."

"These groups pose a threat in their own right, but it is the combination of their capability and the objectives of their state backers which makes them of particular concern," it said.

The lawmakers didn't name any specific countries or say how widespread the practice

Red tape is leading obstacle for business in Canada, according to survey of execs

A survey of leading Canadian executives puts government inefficiency far ahead of high taxes as the top impediment to doing business in this country.

The survey, conducted for the 2012 World Economic Forum, showed that Canadian executives no longer regarded high taxes as a major problem, as they had several years earlier.

The Conference Board, which issued the report, says that finding shows Canadian executives are aware that recent cuts to tax rates by both federal and provincial governments have increased Canada's competitive advantage.

By contrast, executives in seven of 11 other countries participating in the survey continued to list high taxes as the biggest problem they face.

Other impediments cited by the Canadian executives include insufficient capacity to innovate, access to financing and an inadequately trained workforce. THE CANADIAN PRESS

EAT YOUR PHOBIA FOR BREAKFAST

Phobias are nothing to fear. Almost everyone has an irrational fear of something, be it snakes or planes or snakes on planes or being trapped in a movie theatre with Samuel L. Jackson or being unable to make pop cultural references fresher than 2006. But I want to assure you that phobias are nothing to be ashamed of.

Why? Because I too have a phobia — lightning. Most phobias — which is Greek for “fears you have that your friends find hilarious” — are well-known, but fortunately so are the best approaches to dealing with them.

Here we pair some of the most common phobias with a few of the more effective treatments:

Spiders. There's an excellent way to feel better about a spider's legs skittering over your exposed neck at night, or its hungry mouth chewing at your bare skin: Remember that according to the Internet the average person eats an average of eight spiders a year as they sleep. So they might be eating you, but you're getting the last laugh — possibly

HE SAYS

John Mazerolle

with a spider leg or two flying from your lips as you chortle. And note that the Internet says an “average” person eats eight spiders a year. A really exceptional person, such as astronaut and professional Better-Than-You Chris Hadfield, eats as many as 10 spiders in a single week!

(I would have once scoffed at the idea there was any way to count how many spiders a person eats at night, but now that I know what the NSA has been up to, it all makes sense. Thanks Edward Snowden!)

Snakes. There are almost no dangerous snakes in Canada, and the few that are, are extremely passive animals, so this phobia is what scientists call “stupid.” Therefore every time you feel a twinge of fear coming on, have a friend or relative say, “Don't be stupid! It's just a snake, stupid. God, you're so stupid” until the fear passes. (Note: This approach sometimes requires secondary therapy.)

Heights. Some therapists recommend climbing a ‘fear ladder,’

where you expose yourself to your fear in small manageable steps. With heights, you can combine the figurative and literal by jumping from a ladder every day, each day one rung higher. By Day 15 or so the problem kind of takes care of itself.

Lightning. Commonly referred to by scientists as the ‘sexy phobia,’ many of history's greatest heroes were terrified by lightning. Benjamin Franklin. Neil Armstrong. Thor. Yes, they had stoic exteriors, but a loud thunderclap made them cry like school-girls.

So if you should find yourself at home during a lightning storm, trying not to hyperventilate while you distract yourself with a battle-filled Game of Thrones episode cranked to full volume (to pick an entirely random example) then that's OK. Accept it as part of the wonderful, handsome writer you are. Er, person you are.

And that's how you deal with phobias. Of course the best way to approach any fear is to recognize that, even if you're not feeling great, you're in no real danger. Remember to smile, recite some positive statements, and take long, deep breaths. If you do that at night, you'll also swallow some spiders.

Python breaks in to Australian store

Australian police were mystified by a chaotic crime scene including a hole in the ceiling and a smelly pool of vomit-like liquid — until they found the culprit was a 5.7-metre python.

The massive snake, weighing in at 17 kilograms (37 pounds), was captured a day after a suspected burglary was reported at a charity store in Queensland in northeastern Australia.

“Its head was the size of a small dog,” police Sgt. Don Auld said Wednesday. Before they found the python, investigators' working theory was that a human burglar with an appetite for destruction — and a serious illness — had gone on a rampage inside the St. Vincent de Paul store in the small town of Ingham.

The suspect

“We thought a person had fallen through the ceiling because the roof panel was cut in half. When they've hit the floor, they've vomited and then staggered and fallen over. That's what we thought anyway.”

Police Sgt. Don Auld

The break-in

- Police now suspect the python entered the store through the roof, which was damaged in a cyclone two years ago.
- The animal then plummeted through the ceiling, knocking over dishes, clothes and other items, before relieving itself on the floor.

RE: The Story Behind That Abandoned, Flooded Ferrari On Lower Simcoe Street, published July 10

There is no story behind this story. A man left his car behind during a flash flood, as did many others. poor-whiteman posted to metronews.ca

It's not meant to be a hard-hitting news story. The fact that a $192,000-car was abandoned during the flood, clearly, amused some people. It's horrible that so many people have damaged cars and property. But are you telling me that an abandoned Ferrari wouldn't pique your interest more than, say, a Dodge Caravan? bicyclingbookworm posted to metronews.ca

Newfoundland artist slated for a month of creative insight and commentary at Argyle Fine Art

Whether you fancy yourself the next Picasso, or are just a five-year-old child anxiously waiting for a gold star after a rainy-day at school spent drawing a pony, there's always a reason or motivation behind the act of creating.

And, while I can't really go back in time and ask Botticelli, "Dude, what's with all the fat chicks?" I can pop into Argyle Fine Art and talk to current-day Canadian artists about their work all this month.

This chance to chat and mingle with artist old and new is a unique opportunity to tap into the minds that bring life to blank canvases.

One of the artists taking part is landscape painter Dennis Reid, who will be at the downtown gallery through Saturday as part of the Julyness program.

"I like to talk to people about art," said Reid, who will tell the stories behind his paintings.

A representational artist from Newfoundland, he fondly remembers the times spent in the woods "bombaraded by beauty" that helped to inspire his works.

"I was always around landscapes — always in the middle of it — standing on a mountain somewhere, standing in a river somewhere," he says.

"What I originally did with landscapes is really focus on organic shapes without any buildings or man-made distractions. I wasn't interested in that."

While other little boys may have dreamed about becoming an astronaut or cowboy, Reid knew he'd be an artist.

He couldn't help but translate his strong connection to nature and the environment to his canvas in his own unique artistic style.

"I don't try to describe my style. If someone asks me what I do, at the moment I would say representational art in the form of large-scale landscapes — that's what I would tell them," he says.

"A work should stand its own but it's always interesting to hear the back story and I like telling it and each work at this show has a reason for me painting it. It's interesting to tell people why I did a piece."

A breakup, some booze, 2 crappy jobs and $5,000

SOCAN song-writing prize. Dark time had amazing silver lining for Mo Kenney, as she beat out music elite

When Halifax's Mo Kenney penned her forlorn acoustic lament Sucker, she was in a bad place.

Merely 19 years old at the time, she was living on her own in Halifax for the first time and working two "crappy" jobs, one at a dollar store and the other whipping together pizzas at Sobeys. Oh, and she was freshly dumped.

"So I was sitting there feeling kind of (bad) about myself and music wasn't really going anywhere either. I was working toward something but I wasn't sure what to do," she recalled in a telephone interview this week. "So I got a little bit drunk in my room and started writing."

The resultant tune helped Kenney find that direction she was searching for — and on Wednesday heralded some more good fortune.

Kenney and her tune have won the $5,000 English-language SOCAN Songwriting Prize, awarded by the Society of Composers, Authors and Music Publishers of Canada. Quebec's Keith Kouna won the French award for Batiscan.

By winning, Kenney bested a field that included Montreal's icy electro-pop outfit Purity Ring, stylistically diverse Toronto singer/songwriter Maylee Todd, rootsy Hamilton duo Whitehorse and banjo-brandishing Toronto native Tamara Lindeman, who performs as the Weather Station.

"I was in really good company, obviously, and I wasn't really expecting to win," Kenney said. "I was really, really pleasantly surprised." Kenney, 23, released her self-titled debut last September, produced by East Coast songwriting stalwart Joel Plaskett.

She says he'll produce her next effort as well, a record still in the embryonic stages that she hopes to begin recording in the late fall. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The wonderful world of Doctor Oz

Think you're busy?

Get a load of how the TV host (and still practicing surgeon!) spends his days

MEREDITH ENGEL

Metro World News in New York City

In addition to hosting his Emmy-winning talk show, overseeing a non-profit and readying to launch a magazine, Dr. Mehmet Oz still has time to be a practicing cardiothoracic surgeon. He's also a family man, with a wife and four children. How does he juggle it all? We went straight to the source for answers.

5:45 a.m.: Rise and shine

Dr. Oz knows that the early bird gets the worm: "I get up at about quarter to six," he tells us. Upon waking, Dr. Oz does a short, 10-minute workout "which is mainly yoga, with some calisthenics," he says. "I change those calisthenics a bit, but they're essentially core work, so sit-ups, push-ups, etc."

7 a.m.: Get to work

After a morning shower, Dr. Oz commutes by car from his home in New Jersey to his TV studio in the city. "I'm here by like five to seven because at seven o'clock every morning, we start our meetings," he says. Dr. Oz tapes two shows a day and preps for both at the morning meeting: "We troubleshoot (and make any) last changes," he says. For breakfast, it's Greek yogurt, berries and a green juice — a mix of produce like cucumbers, celery, apples, oranges, lemons and limes — which he makes the night before.

8:30 a.m.: Rehearsal

"At 8:30 I go out to rehearse for an hour, and then I run back to the hardest part of my day, which is hair and makeup. Guys can't stand that stuff — you have to sit still and not do anything for 15, 20 minutes."

10 a.m.: Showtime

12 p.m.: Lunch

Dr. Oz's genial spirit comes through when he tells us about the cauliflower his wife, Lisa, made him for lunch: "Here, eat that. It's good," he says, offering us a bite.

12:30 p.m.: Meetings

Dr. Oz's life may sound glamorous, but he still has meetings like the rest of us.

1:30 p.m.: Rehearsal for the second show

3 p.m.: Second show

5 p.m.: Final touches, preps for upcoming shows

After both of the day's episodes are taped, Dr. Oz runs upstairs to his studio to record voice-overs and promos for the local markets. "(What) people don't realize about television is it's a very local business," he says. "It's a national show, but you have to help the local people win their markets. So, you've got to give them stuff to help them tell the story." He also meets with his producers about the coming week's shows.

7 p.m.: Dinner

Dr. Oz heads home and settles into dinner with his kids — however many are home that night — and Lisa, a vegetarian, whom he calls "a great chef." What's on the menu at Chez Oz? "She makes a great pasta (with) different kinds of pesto sauces, arrabbiata sauces — she's really good at making that stuff come alive. She will cook tofu-based dishes quite a bit. She's great at squashes. She takes vegetables and she makes them taste out of this world. We'll have a big salad with different kinds of exotic dressings that she'll mix up. It doesn't take her hours and hours to make it."

8 p.m.: Unwind; prep for the next day's shows

"I rarely go out on weekdays, because I like to be rested for the next day," he says. "If I'm busy doing something else till 10 o'clock at night, I don't find that I'm as rested the following morning." Instead, like a student studying for exams, the doctor readies himself for his next day's shows. "When I get home at night, I have all the scripts, so I'll go through those, and I'll study my medical notes," Dr. Oz tells us. He cops to a "terrible memory," but still manages to prepare himself by focusing on what he wants his viewer to take away from each show. "I try not to memorize (the material)," he says. "I try to understand it."

10:15 p.m.: Lights out

"I'm always in bed by 10:15 at the latest," says Dr. Oz, who gets about seven-and-a-half hours of shut-eye each night. "I fight for that. It's the most important thing I do. I won't take a phone call at 10:15 because anyone who's calling at 10 o'clock is gonna rile you up. ... The number one biggest mistake we make in America is not sleeping, by far."

What's up doc? The man himself in studio during one of his shows. HANDOUT

Justin Bieber stoops to more piss-poor behaviour

Oh, Justin, Justin, Justin. What can we say about your latest example of acting out?

In a video from TMZ, filmed earlier this year, the terrible tiny terror decides that it would be alright for him to urinate in public in a bucket used for floor washing. I'm sure the owners of the restaurant were thrilled to have such a class act visit.

I'm not a fan of corporal punishment, but sometimes the only reasonable option is a hard slap.

In other Bieber news, Chicago Blackhawks fans are crying fowl after a picture of the Biebs posing (with sunglasses on) with the Stanley Cup in the Hawks' dressing room. In the background is a Blackhawks jersey with the word Bieber on it. Fans took to Twitter to voice their discontent that the Biebs' dirty hands touched the sacred trophy.

Khloe kicks Lamar out over an ongoing stripper tryst

Khloe Kardashian kicked husband Lamar Odom out of their home for cheating.

But it gets worse. He was cheating with a stripper. For more than a year. And he paid her.

According to the bombshell report from Star magazine, the woman in question is 29-year-old stripper Jennifer Richardson, whom he met at the Stadium Club strip club in Washington, D.C. after a game last year.

The first night they hooked up, Odom took care to take "her phone apart and put the pieces in different spots all around the room" so she couldn't record their tryst. But that doesn't keep a resourceful stripper from becoming a "source" to Star magazine for money.

The "affair" (which honestly just sounds like various sexual encounters after games in various hotel rooms around the country) lasted for months with Odom at one point "gifting" her $3,000.

Oh, and they had a threesome. I don't know how that falls into the blame game.

Does that mean he cheated with several women or with just one woman, but very spectacularly?

Star reports that Khloe found out about the affair and kicked him out again and again — but they would continue to get back together.

But now it looks like they are headed for a divorce — sources tell Star that Odom moved out for good on June 3 and hasn't been back since.

Friends, you know it's bad when Scott Disick seems like the good Kardashian husband.

The revealing green Versace dress Jennifer Lopez wore at the 2000 Grammys has become the stuff of fashion legend, but Lopez herself remembers not getting what all the fuss was about.

"When I went to my seat, I said, 'What's the big deal?!' (Then-boyfriend) Puffy and Benny (Medina, her manager) were waiting, and they said, 'You have to take pictures in that dress.'"

Here comes the Suno

What a pretty pair.

The CFDA winners fill us in on their plans for future success, their personal style and a summer in the city

CHADHA

Metro World News

Erin Beatty and Max Osterweis, the friendly duo behind Suno, a brand that has charmed Anna Wintour and a slew of New York editors and bloggers, recently won the coveted 2013 CFDA Swarovski Award for emerging talent in womenswear. Maybe now they'll allow themselves to take a summer Friday or two off. We chat with the designers about their big win and summer plans.

Congrats on the recent win. How did you celebrate?

Erin: Max and I met up with his girlfriend Kate and my boyfriend Lex and we actually spent the night with the Creatures of the Wind going to the after parties.

Who was the first person you called when you won?

Erin: I didn't even have my phone at the awards ceremony.

Max: I emailed Erin's dad who shared the news with her family, and I emailed my parents and then social media took care of the rest.

Erin: It was totally unexpected. We were very thrilled to win and are very excited to try to live up to it.

What do you hope the award will do for the brand?

Erin: Hopefully, more than anything, it helps to increase brand recognition and encourage the stores that we're already in to place larger orders, and encourage the stores that we're not in to buy us. We definitely want to get back into Barney's.

How are you hoping to grow the company?

Erin: We know that we're going to want to dip into accessories sooner rather than later, it's just a matter of timing. Definitely cool bags and shoes. I mean we've always been interested in head-to-toe dressing.

Max: The number one question that we always get asked is when are we going to do men's? And we have no answer for that number one question.

What are your plans for the summer?

Max: Both of us are focusing on taking weekends off as much as we can. The first few years of Suno, none of us really took that much time off, including on the weekends, so I started taking my weekends pretty seriously last summer, and I think Erin's doing the same this year.

Erin: I actually rented a place in Germantown, N.Y. so I'm actually in the country.

What's an ideal summer day?

Erin: It's sitting down outside and reading.

Max: Spending time on my boat, fishing.

What are you reading this summer?

Erin: I just finished Freedom by Jonathan Franzen and now I'm reading Lit by Mary Karr.

Max: I just finished a 10-novel series: The Story of a Crime. It's the Martin Beck series — Swedish, socialists, detective novels from the '70s.

What summer looks are you loving right now?

Erin: I'm wearing embroidery all the time right now, cotton embroidery.

Max: My mom was just with me this past weekend, out in the country, and she insisted that we do a caftan for her.

Best way to beat the heat?

Max: Get in the water, whether it's a fire hydrant, or the ocean or the pool.

Potato curry in a hurry

"Aloo gobi, the Indian curry made with potatoes, cauliflower and spices, is a firm favourite in our household," writes Miriam Sorrell in her book Mouthwatering Vegan. "So I decided to create some fast burgers based loosely on that wonderful dish. If you like potato curry, you are going to love these. Serve with a simple salad of greens and cherry tomatoes on the side ... And slap on the ketchup!"

1. Place the peas and corn in a saucepan and cover with boiling water. Cook for a couple of minutes, then drain and set aside.

2. Meanwhile, in a medium bowl mash the microwaved potatoes. Add the margarine, milk, curry powder and salt. Bear in mind that the mash needs to be a fairly firm consistency.

3. In a food processor, process together the carrot, onion, garlic, mushrooms and herbs.

Ingredients

- 3 tbsp (45 ml) frozen peas
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) frozen corn
- 4 medium potatoes microwaved until soft, then peeled
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) vegan margarine
- about 1/4 cup (60 ml) non-dairy milk
- 1 1/2 tsp (7.5 ml) curry powder
- salt to taste
- 1 medium carrot, grated
- 1/2 onion
- 2 cloves garlic
- 4 mushrooms
- sprig of fresh mint
- sprig of fresh rosemary
- 2 tsp (10 ml) nutritional yeast
- 1 1/2 tbsp (22.5 ml) unbleached all-purpose flour
- olive oil

4. Add the ingredients from the food processor to the mashed potato mixture, together with the cooked peas and corn, nutritional yeast and flour. Stir well with a fork, taste and adjust seasoning if necessary.

Yummy Curried Potato Burgers

This recipe makes about eight burgers. MIRIAM SORRELL

5. Heat a drizzle of olive oil in a nonstick frying pan set over medium heat. Spoon in dollops of the potato mixture. Cook for a few minutes, flattening very slightly with a spatula to make patty shapes, then gently flip. You may need to do this in batches, repeating with any remaining mixture, to make 8 burgers.

6. Serve on buns with your favourite burger fixings, or on their own with vegetables and salad. Reheat any leftovers in a hot oven—they may become mushy in the microwave.

A wine crate one day, and a coffee table the next

One man's treasure.

7 ways you can turn alcohol holders into something useful

Old wine crates can be found lying around the house, at your local liquor store or even at neighbourhood garage sales.

Before sending them to the landfill, consider a few do-it-yourself options to repurpose wine crates for household use.

1 Create a contemporary bookcase by painting each crate a different colour and stacking one on top of another.

Break up solid colours by using a stencil to create unique and fun patterns.

2 Enhance your outdoor patio with makeshift rustic seating options. It's as simple as just flipping over each crate so the flat surface is on top. Chair pads can provide an option for more cushioned seating and come in a variety of shapes and colours.

3 Add a touch of spring to your kitchen or patio by creating a planter box for your favourite foliage.

Start by drilling a few holes into the bottom of the crate to allow for drainage, and then spray the crate with a waterproof seal.

Once the crate is dry, just flip it over, fill with potting soil and start planting. Wine crates are the ideal size for potted plants.

4 Add a textured, lofty accent to your bar or kitchen walls by using wine crates as wall tiles. Take each crate apart until you're left with flat boards, and then cover an entire wall with the tiles.

5 Wine crates don't just have to be used to store wine bottles. Throw your household knickknacks into old crates, then stack and store away. Attaching wheels to each crate creates rolling storage for easy access and transportation.

6 Running in and out of the house during summer parties in the backyard can track dirt inside.

Use a leftover wine crate as a shoe storage rack for your back patio to prevent unwanted messes inside the house.

7 Creating a coffee table out of a wine crate can be a cost-friendly way to add a rustic feel to your living room. First stain or paint three or four crates and let them dry. Then arrange the crates and create a frame using L brackets. Nail the crates to the frame, and enjoy your new DIY coffee table.

'I had a blast': Black wins silver, bronze in Russia

Gymnastics. 2012 Olympian says stay at world university games meant more to her than medals

andrew.rankin@metronews.ca

Her silver- and bronze-medal performances on Wednesday against the world's best wasn't what made Ellie Black most proud.

Instead, it was a fourth-place finish at the world university summer games in Kazan, Russia, that had the Halifax gymnast beaming.

For the first time in competition, the 2012 Olympian tried an especially difficult vault routine, which, among other mind-bending feats of athleticism, required her to execute two full 360-degree body twists in a second or so and then land squarely on her feet.

She nailed it but ended up just shy of the podium. However, that did little to temper Black's joy on the third and final day of competition.

"When I landed my vault, I just had a huge smile on my face. I wasn't thinking about my result. I knew I did it," Black said. "I was so happy, Halifax gymnast Ellie Black stands on the podium with her balance-beam bronze medal on Wednesday at the world university summer games in Kazan, Russia.

everyone was telling me how great I did. I was so proud.

"It took a little more than I'm used to mentally and physically, and it's hard when it's the third day of competition. My body was a little tired, so I had to go a little harder, but everything went so well."

The reigning senior national all-around champion placed fourth on Tuesday in the women's all-around final.

A day later, everything came together for the 17-year-old, who approached the final events full of confidence.

Black placed third on the balance beam after her vault performance, and then silver in the floor exercise. She's the first Canadian woman to medal in artistic gymnastics at the annual event since 1983.

"I approached the day just like normal, to go out there and approach the routine the way I wanted to. I wasn't thinking about the outcome at all, I was focused on performing my best. I'm so proud to come back home with two medals for Canada and I had a blast while doing it."

Now Black, who will start her first year at Dalhousie University in September, has her sights on the world gymnastic championships in Antwerp, Belgium, from Sept. 30 to Oct. 6.

"That's my next big challenge."

Rainmen owner calls for corporate money

After pouring his heart and soul into the Halifax Rainmen over the past six years, Andre Levingston says he needs more help.

As the franchise owner prepares for another season — particularly the demands of piecing together a competitive National Basketball League of Canada club — he's looking for increased corporate support in the city.

"I've shown my commitment to the city of Halifax," Levingston said. "I'd like to see more pride. I'd like to see more people involved who are proud of our product."

Levingston says he's not content to engineer a team to merely compete. He wants to win. But winning costs money and finding passionate investors with a long-term vision for a Halifax-based professional hoops franchise has proven a challenge.

"This is a huge financial undertaking. We're going on seven years. Naturally we want to continue raising the bar. We want to deliver year after year."

In the meantime, the task of putting together another Rainmen roster starts now. Over the next week Leving-ton says he'll decide whether to re-sign coach Rob Spon. In the midst of a heavy recruiting schedule, Levingston has the NBL draft on Aug. 19 to prepare for.

He knows he has a lot of work to do in rejigging a team that missed the playoffs last season. Improved shooting and defence are a few of Levingston's priorities.

He'll be looking to re-sign a few old faces in Quinell Brown, Joey Haywood and Akeem Wright.

Levingston will be counting on a little help with it all.

Kawasaki's clutch ninth-inning hit pushes Jays to win

MLB. Infielder finds ideal time to end his 0-for-18 hitting slump

Munenori Kawasaki hit a two-run single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Cleveland Indians 5-4 Wednesday night.

Kawasaki, who broke an 0-for-18 slump, lined a 1-2 pitch from Joe Smith into left-centre field to score two runs. A third run scored when centre-fielder Michael Bourn booted the ball for an error.

Colby Rasmus drew a one-out walk off Rich Hill (0-1). After Maicer Izturis flied out, J.P. Arencibia was announced to bat for Josh Thole. Joe Smith relieved Hill but Arencibia singled and Emilio Bonifacio walked to load the bases. Kawasaki fell behind in the count but came up with the clutch hit Toronto's struggling offence has needed.

Neil Wagner (2-3) struck out Ryan Raburn with the bases loaded to end the eighth after the Indians tied the game. Casey Janssen allowed two runs in the ninth before Steve Delabar retired Michael Brantley on a fly ball for his first major-league save.

Indians starter Justin Masterson took a two-hit shutout into the seventh but Bonifacio's two-run single put the Blue Jays ahead.

The Indians tied the game in the eighth off all-star reliever Brett Cecil on Brantley's RBI single.

Following Nick Swisher's walk, Brantley's hard-hit ground ball shot past short-stop Jose Reyes and into centre field, tying the game.

Toronto starter Esmil Rogers allowed one run in six innings. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fan doused me with urine: Cyclist

Mark Cavendish believes a roadside spectator sprayed him with urine during the Tour de France time trial on Wednesday, his team manager said.

Patrick Lefevere of

Omega Pharma-Quick Step said the incident may have been linked to anger among some fans who claimed — unfairly in his view — that Cavendish intentionally bumped into Dutch rider Tom Veelers and caused him to crash in the final sprint a day earlier.

The team didn't know exactly where it happened on the 33-kilometre course to Mont-Saint-Michel on the Brittany coast.

At least one cycling aficionado suggested it was all part of the sport.

Lance Armstrong tweeted: "Why all the sudden shock and outrage. this has been happening for 100 years in some form or another." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public could be left in dark in Biogenesis scandal

We may never know exactly what Alex Rodriguez and Ryan Braun are being accused of in MLB's Biogenesis investigation — if they beat the rap.

That's because details likely will be caught in a tangle of legal gymnastics involving MLB, the players' union and probably an arbitrator, who could rule no discipline is warranted.

Among the early legal issues: Does the commissioner's office have the right to announce any suspensions before grievances are decided by an arbitrator? Can a player not previously disciplined under the drug agreement be suspended for more than 50 games because of multiple violations?

Three people familiar with the investigation said if management and the union can't agree on the process, arbitrator Fredric Horowitz likely would be asked to decide. The people spoke on condition of anonymity because no public statements were authorized.

NBA. Raptors GM Ujiri: 'We're going to be tough'

Masai Ujiri wants to remake the image of the Toronto Raptors, and with the expected addition of physical power forward Tyler Hansbrough, it's easy to see what he has in mind.

It's all about toughness. "I'm tired of all this, people come here and everybody calls the team soft or call the team pushovers or all the stupid names," Ujiri said Wednesday. "You come to Canada and you come to play. That's the identity we're trying to build here."

The general manager's declaration came the same day the deal became official that sent centre Andrea Bargnani — known for his lackadaisical play — to the New York Knicks for shooter Steve Novak, Quentin Richardson, 39-year-old centre Marcus Camby and draft picks.

The hard-nosed Hansbrough is known for his all-out effort, and toughness around the rim. While Ujiri said the Raptors and Hansbrough had come to an agreement, he wouldn't confirm the deal was completely signed and sealed.

"We're hoping, it's one of those things in the NBA is you've agreed and you hope,"

New Raptor Steve Novak was introduced to the media in Toronto on Wednesday. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Ujiri said. "There's no holdup, nothing at all, we've agreed. It's business, until you sign I don't want to talk about it, because you never know."

Hansbrough became an unrestricted free agent when the Indiana Pacers opted not to re-sign the 27-year-old after four seasons with the club.

The hard-nosed University of North Carolina product was drafted by the Pacers 13th overall in 2009, and averaged seven points and 4.6 rebounds last season.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Take life at a more civilized pace today — well, civilized by your standards anyway. You don't have to work your fingers to the bone to make a good impression.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You may be unenthusiastic about what you have to do but do it anyway and strive to do a good job. If you make an effort for other people now, they will be more inclined to make an effort for you later.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

You may need to lower your sights a little over the next 24 hours. It's good to aim high but according to the planets your current aims reside in a galaxy far, far away. Bring them back to Earth today.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You know something your rivals don't and it can give you the edge to get ahead of the pack and stay ahead. But, knowledge is power only if you are prepared to use it.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Others will talk you up today and you'll love every moment of it. But why are they so determined to make you look good? Are they just being friendly or is there a deeper motive?

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

If there is someone you want to impress, all you have to do is open your mouth and tell them what you think. The fact that you do think, when so many in the world today do not, puts you at an advantage.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

For some reason, you appear to believe that you have to work twice as hard and move twice as fast as your rivals. Don't put pressure on yourself when you don't have to.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

You may not be the most forgiving member of the zodiac but you are smart enough to realize that an ongoing feud is a waste of time. Do what you have to do to heal the rift.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You will be under pressure today and maybe of the kind that you are not naturally equipped to handle. Whatever happens, you must stay calm.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You are in a light-hearted and carefree mood at the moment. But a work colleague will seek to burst your bubble by making demands that cannot be met. Smile sweetly and tell them to forget it!

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Minor problems are likely to have far-reaching consequences today. Think before you act and, if you are not sure which course of action is best, take no action at all. Come tomorrow, the problem will have resolved itself.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

You have so much going for you now but you seem to believe that your life is falling apart. Stand back from your everyday worries and see the bigger picture. SALLY BROMPTON
